

A Day in the Life of a Scrum Master: Typical Impediments and Challenges

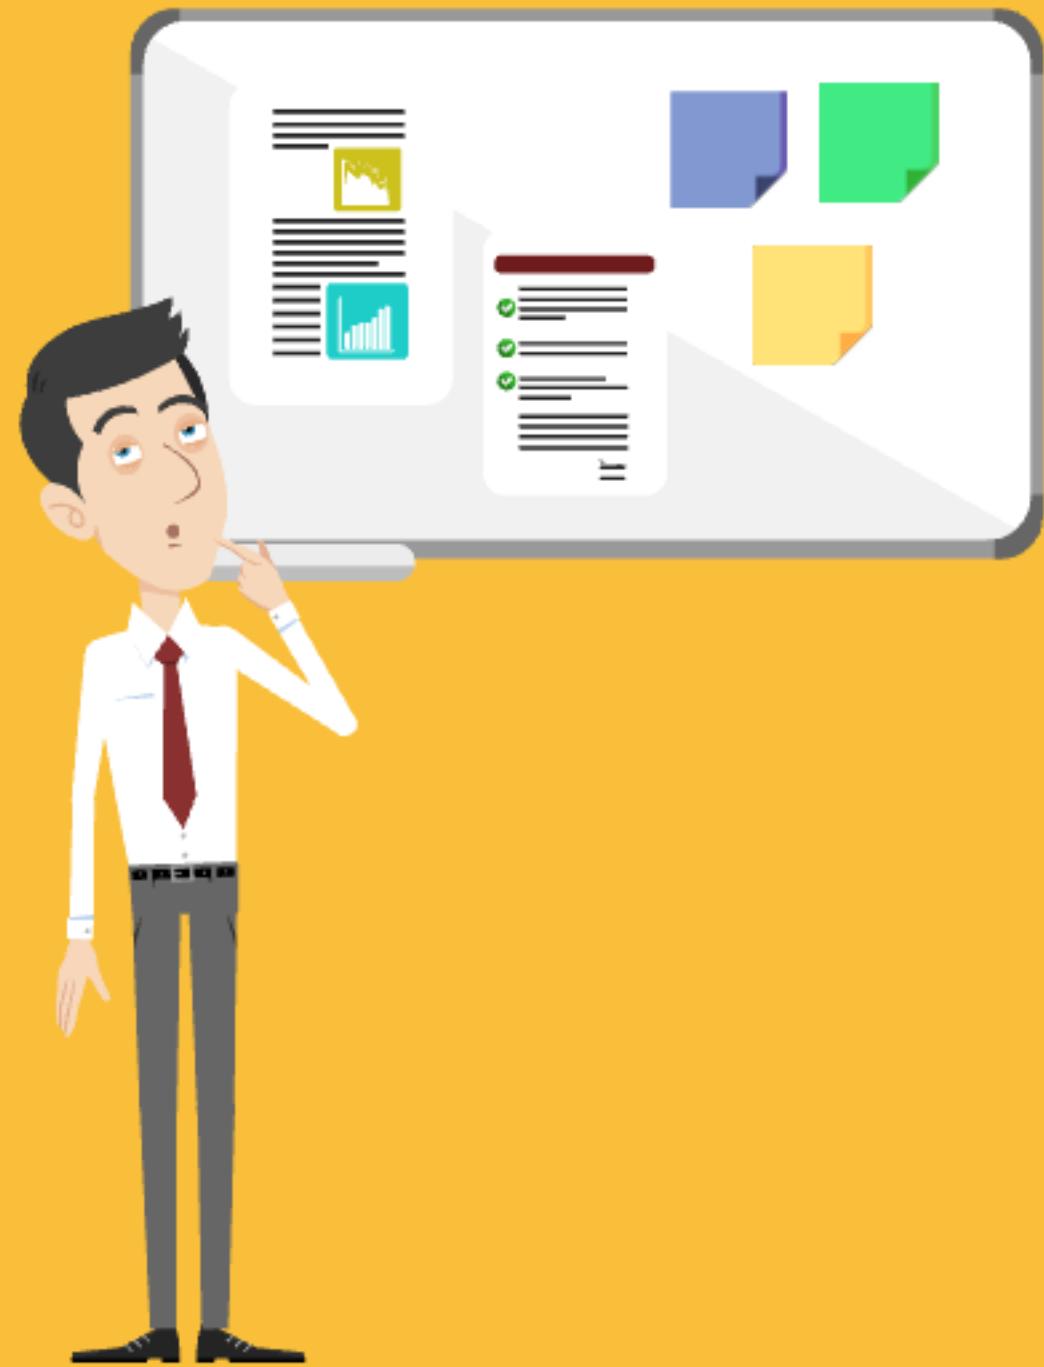

The following points summarize a typical day in the life of a scrum master as well as possible impediments and challenges he or she might face

- Get to the office 15 minutes earlier than the team

- Coordinate the daily stand-up meeting
- Neutralize tempers flaring up from the stand-up meeting
- Time to analyze the discussion in the daily stand-up meeting and decide which impediments to focus on removing

- Hold meeting with one of the vice presidents of the company; he planned a staff get together for a day set aside for our review

- Hold meeting with one of the vice presidents of the company; he planned a staff get together for a day set aside for our review

Together with the product owner, attend release performance testing meeting and discuss how best to include distant stakeholders in retrospective reviews

Meet with the product owner to help in the extraction stories from development operations

- Have a short time boxed meeting with a developer

Working lunch with some top management

- Assist the product owner with some management tools he/she wanted assistance in implementing
- Work with a new engineer to train him/her in the implementation of Test Driven Development

Discussion with product owner about how to cool down a company political issue with a potential to affect the team before the issue gets to the team

Leave office an hour and a half earlier than usual to attend an evening Agile conference